

asdada

The National Museum - Architecture

Bankplassen 3

<http://www.nasjonalmuseet.no>

January 23 - April 19

Forms of Freedom. African independence and Nordic models

One of the forms in which the Nordic countries initially supplied development aid to Africa was by sending Nordic architects to help in the process of nation building. Scandinavian politicians believed the social democratic model could be exported, and the new African leaders wanted cooperation partners without a colonialist past. This exhibition documents the buildings that architects designed for the newly independent states of Kenya, Tanzania and Zambia, and the ways in which schools, industrial estates and symbolic buildings have since been accepted, used, adapted or rejected. The exhibition was shown in the Nordic Pavilion at the Architecture Biennale in Venice in 2014.

Curator: Nina Berre

Co-curator: Gro Bonesmo (Space Group)

Project Manager: Nina Frang Høyum

The exhibition is curated and produced by the National Museum in collaboration with the Architecture and Design Centre in Sweden and the Museum of Finnish Architecture.

February 6 - April 26

Architecture in the Museum. A Fortieth Anniversary

Since 1975, the Museum of Architecture, now the National Museum - Architecture, has collected, documented and promoted knowledge about Norwegian architecture. The exhibition describes the museum's history and activities, while also providing an impression of the period's architecture.

Since 1975, the Museum of Architecture, now the National Museum -

asdada

Architecture, has collected, documented and promoted knowledge about Norwegian architecture. The exhibition describes the museum's history and activities, while also providing an impression of the period's architecture. - See more at:
http://nasjonalmuseet.no/en/exhibitions_and_events/exhibitions/national_museum_architecture/Architecture+in+the+Museum.+A+Fortieth+Anniversary.b7C_wlfQ4d.ips#sthash.8jcblFzX.dpuf